HERE'S HOW YOU CAN WRITE A GOOD RESUME

Looking for a job in this current climate? Here are some tips on how to write a resume that could help showcase your experience and skills.

Dealing with retrenchment or redundancy can be stressful, and having to look for a new job can be very challenging too. Many may just jump back into applying for jobs but finding your next career requires preparation.

And of course, your job search begins with your resume. So, here is how you can get started on updating your resume.

1. Fill employment gaps with experience and competencies

A good resume is key to convincing prospective employers to call you for an interview, so it is important to make full use of this precious document. Remember to articulate your experiences and competencies in a clear and concise manner. This means leaving out unnecessary information and wording your resume carefully in order to not misrepresent your capabilities.

2. Word your resume carefully to align with job description and expectations

Generally, when writing a resume that sells your professional capabilities, you need to analyse the job description extensively. This way, you can apply similar terms, concepts and contexts when you are writing and elaborating on your job experiences. This lets the employer match your skill sets and understand if you are a potentially good fit. If you are required to indicate your reasons for leaving your previous employment, stating a simple reason will suffice.

3. Include part-time or contract work commitments taken up

Some may leave out part-time, ad hoc or contract work experience from the resume, believing they are redundant, but that is not true. It is about how you phrase your experiences and match them to job expectations. It is important to highlight to your prospective employer that you are spending time productively as you look for stable employment. It could also indicate that you are adding value to your career development by honing skills such as communication and resourcefulness.

It may seem daunting to join the sea of jobseekers out there, but a well-crafted resume can help you stand out from the crowd.

How a Nasi Lemak Seller STRUGGLED THROUGH COVID-19

Earlier this year, Suzaimi Abdul Rahman was running a busy nasi lemak stall, going through about 25kg worth of chicken wings on any given weekday. That is equivalent to about 200 plates of food.

However, during the circuit breaker, his business suffered tremendously as sales dropped by about 80 per cent. His stall is located above the main canteen in one of Singapore's army camps, which saw very few people coming in and out during the two-month period.

Plus, the lack of public foot traffic meant he could not bank on takeaways, and he also lacked the proper infrastructure to do deliveries at the time.

"After buying ingredients and setting aside money for rent, I took home only about $10 every day. Some days, nothing at all," recalls Suzaimi, a resident of East Coast.

GETTING HELP FROM HIS COMMUNITY

In order to survive, he relied on government grants and took on odd-jobs like running errands and doing deliveries, usually for friends who would pay him a token for the help.

"My F&B friends know I go to Geylang Serai to buy my ingredients every day, so they pay me a few dollars to help them get what they need. Or sometimes my brother – he does deliveries part-time – has too many parcels to send, so he passes me the jobs," explains Suzaimi.

It also helped that his friends would spread word about his nasi lemak business via their personal networks, and he did the same for those who also ran F&B businesses.

"It was a time when everyone was tight financially, so my friends talked about it and decided to help one another out," he says.

GROWING UP IN THE KAMPUNG

Suzaimi's sense of community came from growing up in a kampung environment, where his father loved inviting people over for makan. And even though he never went to cooking school, his ability to cook came from simply helping relatives whenever they catered events.

"Whenever there was a wedding or event, they called me, and I would just stand there with a long pole and help stir the pot. Whatever they put in, I would ask what it is, and they would tell me. Over time I learned the order and amount of what goes in. But I never wrote it down, it's all inside my head," he says.

For him, the sense of achievement comes from seeing people enjoy his food. He says, "This stall is just my first chapter. After COVID-19 dies down, I want to open a shop outside so I can serve more people. That's my second chapter."

NATIONAL

DAY

in the Comfort and Safety of Home

We may have celebrated Singapore's birthday online this year, but that did not dampen our spirits!

After all, instead of a single celebration, East Coast was buzzing with online National Day festivities all weekend long. Through platforms like Zoom and Facebook Live, Singaporeans at home were able to watch live streams of ceremonies hosted in different zones, and were entertained by virtual performances, quizzes, and singalong sessions.

On the morning of National Day itself, there was even a broadcast of the mobile column as it drove through the streets, showcasing impressive assets from the Singapore Armed Forces (SAF), the Singapore Police Force (SPF) and the Singapore Civil Defence Force (SCDF).

Despite being set against the background of a pandemic, the showcase of Singapore's spirit and unity certainly made this year's National Day Parade a special one!

EAST COAST SILVER BLUEPRINT

As part of the East Coast Plan to build up a support network for senior citizens living in our constituency, our MPs launched the new East Coast Silver Blueprint on September 13.

This new initiative aims to help seniors living in East Coast GRC lead active, engaged lives with better amenities and social support.

IN EAST COAST, 40 PER CENT OF THE 190,000 RESIDENTS ARE CURRENTLY AGED 50 AND ABOVE.

1 IN 7 SINGAPOREANS ARE ABOVE 65

1 IN 4 SINGAPOREANS ARE ABOVE 65

EAST COAST SILVER BLUEPRINT

VOLUNTEER WITH US

JOIN OUR EAST COAST CONVERSATIONS

THE PLAN

1 ENGAGING ACTIVE SENIORS

Create more programmes and initiatives for seniors to engage in activities they are interested in. This includes qi gong sessions, Zumba classes, and brisk-walking groups to keep them physically fit, as well as digital clinics to help them pick up new skills and stay mentally active.

2 CREATING SOCIAL NETWORKS

Provide common spaces and tap on community partnerships to encourage interaction between the young and old. At the same time, conduct more mental health programmes on topics like mindfulness, and hold more social activities like cooking classes and void deck tea sessions.

3 CARING FOR FRAIL AND VULNERABLE SENIORS

Galvanise groups on the ground to reach out to seniors and answer to their social or psychological needs. Neighbours can be given the right resources and education, so they can help look out for vulnerable elderly who may live alone.

NEXT STEPS

1 VOLUNTEER TRAINING

Recruited volunteers will be given training to learn what is required of them, how to work with community partners, and how to reach out to seniors in the community.

2 NEEDS SURVEYS

Surveys will be conducted to find out the needs and concerns of seniors, as well as their caregivers.

3 TOWN AND HOME AUDITS

Working with community partners and schools, existing infrastructure will be assessed to see what can be changed for successful and graceful ageing-in-place.

4 CAREGIVERS' SUPPORT NETWORK

A support network will be created for those caring for aged parents, so they can lean on and learn from one another. This will also give them a platform to connect to resources, healthcare and social services, as well as avenues to voice their concerns.

MAKING EAST COAST A DEMENTIA-FRIENDLY TOWN

One in 10 people aged 60 and above may have dementia. East Coast aims to be a dementia-friendly town, with programmes that increase awareness, address needs, and enhance the quality of life for them.

1 Conduct home audits to assess how to improve quality of life for those with dementia

2 Create go-to points where lost and wandering people with dementia can be taken to by members of the public

HELP US STOP DENGUE

How Dengue is spread:

An uninfected female Aedes mosquito bites a person infected with dengue, and now carries the virus. It then transmits dengue to anyone it bites after that.

The Aedes mosquito can breed in clean, stagnant water, as small in volume as a 20-cent coin.

Let us do our part to break the dengue transmission cycle by removing stagnant water from potential mosquito breeding grounds.

Do the Mozzie Wipeout at least once a week.

Tip the vase

Buangkan air pasu bunga

更换花瓶里的水

பூச்சாடி நீரை மாற்றுங்கள்

Clear the roof gutter & place Bti insecticide

Bersihkan alur bumbung dan bubuhkan racun serangga Bti

疏通阻塞的屋顶檐槽，并加入Bti杀蚊药

வடிகால்களைச் சுத்தப்படுத்தி அவற்றில் Bti பூச்சிக்கொல்லியை வைத்துடுங்கள்

Turn the pail
